CYBERCAFE

A JLP Cybercafe, also known as an internet cafe, is a place where people can access computers with internerconnectivity for a fee. These cafes are popular in areas where people do not have internet access at home or in public places. Cybercafes provide a range of services, including printing, scanning, and copying. Some also offer snacks and beverages to their customers. Cybercafes can be found in most countries around the world, and are especially popular in urban areas.
